Seen & Heard Around Murray

Trying to read a sign the other day, it was too close to look through the top part of our glasses, and too far away to read through the lower part. About all we could do was try and guess what it said.

We run into this same sort of trouble at the grocery trying to read the labels on the bottom shelf. Naturally we are too close to the cans to look through the top part of our glasses and to see through the bottom of our glasses we have to hunch over, stick the bottom of our head forward, tilt our head back and try to see through the bottom part.

This is just one of the disadvantages of advancing age. We also find we have to turn our head a little to one side to hear people talk. We can hear the noise they are making, but we find that we are failing to discern what they are saying.

However, as our uncle once said, it is better to advance in age than not to.

Nice fellow to talk to, Dwain Taylor.

We have two seedling Golden Chain Trees that are growing well. Have them in a big pot out in the yard. We'll let them grow there all summer, then this fall we'll fix a good spot where they can grow unimpeded. These came from seeds from the tree in the courtyard that Clyde Steele put out some years ago.

Went home to lunch yesterday and before we did anything else, we had to clean the filter in Oscar's tank. He is sort of like trying to keep a horse inside the house. About a foot long now. The filter was dirty and the bubbles had almost quit coming from it. While we cleaned the filter, he snuck off in one corner and eyed us fishily.

Hollered out the back door the other day for Lucky the outside dog so we could give her some steak bones. Lucky was no where in sight, but a small squirrel in the back yard got shook up at our hollering and headed for the Post Office.

We were forced to get a new alarm clock today. We noticed that the one we have has stopped for some unknown reason at one time or another. In fact when we started to wind it last night, the thing had stopped and it still had plenty of winding left in it.

What brought about this great decision to purchase a new alarm clock is the fact that we woke up this morning with a start, knowing full well that it was past our getting up time. The clock was set for 6:30 and

Two Hospitalized From Injuries Sustained In Fire Early Today

Mr. and Mrs. William Roode of 213 Woodlawn were hospitalized this morning after suffering burns in a fire at their home at 213 Woodlawn.

Officials at the Murray-Calloway County Hospital said Mrs. Judith Roode suffered small lacerations to the scalp and back and burns and blisters to the hand. Mr. Roode had second degree burns of the shoulder and scratches.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Roode are listed in satisfactory condition by hospital officials.

The Murray Fire Department answered the call at 6:30 a.m. and said that the fire was centered mainly in the hall where the furnace is located.

The Roodes were injured when they broke a window in one of the rooms to rescue their dog, according to the firemen. Fire Chief Flavil Robertson said it is thought the fire started from clothes on the furnace. Evidently the thermostat on the furnace was set high enough so that the air conditioner caused it to come on and set the clothes on fire, according to the fire chief.

Smoke damage was reported to all parts of the house. Harvey Dixon is reported to be the owner of the house.

No Injuries Reported In Two Car Collision

North 6th and Olive Streets was the scene of a two car collision Wednesday at 12:23 p.m., according to the report filed by the officers of the Murray Police Department. No injuries were reported.

Cars involved were a 1968 Mercury station wagon driven by Christine R. Kodman, 1503 Glendale Road, Murray, and a 1964 Oldsmobile four door hardtop driven by Fred Allen Whitnell of Murray Route Three.

Police said Mrs. Kodman was going south on North 6th Street. She told police she stopped for the stop sign at Olive Street, but failed to see the Whitnell car going east on Olive Street. Damage to the Kodman car was on the front end and to the Whitnell car on the left side.

Meet Bruce Davidson

"Now" Kind of Star—No Heartthrobs

By ARMY ARCHER

Central Press Association

HOLLYWOOD: An enigma to Louis B. Mayer. That's what young star Bruce Davidson would have been to the man who built the film empire in Culver City. The late tycoon ruled an era that Bruce, who just finished a "now" film, "The Strawberry Statement," knows only vaguely from the late, late show.

"Since I've been in Hollywood," says the 20-year-old, "that's only about three months, everybody's said, 'Boy you sure came along at the right time.' But what they're really saying is that I'm no Clark Gable or Tyrone Power." He figures that his face isn't reminiscent of any heartthrob. Further, he has no interest in trying to be one.

"Just say," he made a freaky face, "that I'm kind of tall, underweight, blond and my real name is Bruce Davidson and my chipped tooth is also real. I think people like myself being in movies is the healthiest thing that ever happened to the American film industry," emphasizes the stage-trained, fair-skinned lad who looks like the boy next door rather than Hollywood's version of the boy next door.

"YOU HEAR a lot of people in the industry crying about the loss of glamor. I'm from Philadelphia and I never saw any glamor, whatever that is," Davidson said.

"Cinema will be the greatest art form ever. Glamor is something for Palm Beach. There's no place for it in art. How can you be an artist if you're worried about your image, your hair? The vital, successful new film makers are using the screen to examine real people. A little good a little bad." Bruce has starred in two movies, "Last Summer," currently in release, and "The Strawberry Statement." Both are about real, young people. Both examine the good and bad, the strength and weakness of the emerging generation and in a wider sense, all of us.

"Last Summer" pinpointed the beauty of the individual with flashes of human cruelty. "The Strawberry Statement," one of the first major studio attempts to "tell it like it is," is based on 19-year-old James Kunen's book about college dissent.

THE SCREEN play was written by two-time OBIE winning playwright Israel Horowitz, age 30. And it was directed by 28-year-old Stuart Hazman. The producers, Irwin Winkler and Bob Chartoff are the old men of the project in their mid-30s.

Davidson wasn't a student revolutionary at Penn State or, later at New York University. "At NYU," he recalls, "I went to classes and spent the rest of my time trying to get work as an actor. I'm really ashamed that, when my college went on strike for two weeks over a real injustice, I took advantage by sleeping late. I've changed a lot, especially since working on this picture."

Davidson, who looks '78, is an example of the new Hollywood breed. He owns one suit, but he rarely wears it. "I never worked with a so-called star," he smiled. "I think I might want to laugh if I saw an actor throwing his weight around."

"WHY should an actor get special treatment? Making a good movie, one that projects a positive, singular statement, must be a group effort. The first day at MGM, after we returned from a long San Francisco location, they had a car waiting to take me to the commissary which was only a block away. Why should I ride when absolutely brilliant technicians have to walk? Besides, walking is good for you, especially if you're walking with Kim Darby, Bruce continued.

"Maybe if I stopped all the wars, all the injustice and made hatred evaporate, then I would deserve special treatment."

Davidson has turned down about a dozen important scripts and contracts with many interesting clauses and fringe benefits.

Louis B. Mayer "just would not have understood" Bruce Davidson.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Before you get your hopes up over the recent market rally keep in mind that the basic reasons for the "worst bear market since 1929" are still with us, the Alexander Hamilton Institute warns.

The company notes that the economy is still "soft," inflation remains unchecked, money is still tight, "and we're far from being out of the international woods." Since "a bear market usually does not immediately reverse its trend," the institute foresees a period of base building "before a sustained upturn gets under way."

In 1920 Ohio Sen. Warren Harding was summoned to a Chicago hotel room and informed he had been chosen as the dark Horse Republican candidate for president. He won the election the following November.

PERKINS ADDRESSES SOCIAL WELFARE SEMINAR

Child Welfare Commissioner

George Perkins suggested in an address at Lexington that social scientists study communities of people rather than individuals to learn how to develop a society in which fewer persons are rejected as deviants.

Perkins was addressing the Social Welfare Research Needs Seminar sponsored by the Social Welfare Research Institute and the Center for Developmental Change at the University of Kentucky.

The great stock market rescue which began May 27 was carried out by "odd-lotters," together with round-lot customers covering short positions and by all accounts...institutional investors played no great role," according to Abraham & Co. But the company believes that the odd-lot and round-lot people "may be largely satisfied for now." It therefore sees the future as depending upon "a revival of demand from individual and institutional investors and on a rejuvenation of speculative spirits generally."

The Dines Letter advises that all technical signs add up to the fact that the market is "still bearish" and adds that "short-term strength should for the moment be treated as bear market rallies." Although it could come soon, the newsletter believes that a "major buy signal...has not yet arrived."

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Your Voluntary Association "Open your mind, your heart, your hand to the mentally ill," says the Mental Health Association in calling attention to this year's mental health month: the month of May.

Although many people know about the Mental Health Association, many others do not; and it is worth reminding ourselves, for those who know, and worth learning about, for those who don't, that the network of your local and state mental health associations throughout the country represents the private and individual, voluntary sharing in the nationwide attack on mental illness.

The problem of mental and emotional illness, striking some 3,000,000 and costing $20 billion a year, obviously requires all the resources we can provide—private as well as public.

Joining with professional societies, such as the medical society and psychiatric, psychological, social work, and nursing organizations, with local, state, and national government agencies, the voluntary association in your community or state—and the National Association for Mental Health at the national level—performs essential and indispensable roles in fighting mental illness and promoting mental health.

Some of the vital roles include these:

Helping improve hospital care, Mental Health Association volunteers bring direct services, gifts, and friendship to patients.

Adequate rehabilitation services can cut readmissions to mental hospitals from 35 percent to 10 percent; such services are often carried out through help of the Association, aiding through social clubs, halfway houses, and work training and employment programs.

Mental health associations also help initiate, support, and operate critically needed community facilities and programs, such as community centers, counseling clinics, and walk-in clinics, as well as day-care residential, and special school programs for emotionally disturbed children.

Special education materials are developed and seminars are conducted for clergymen, police officers, business and industrial executives, and for other groups whose members frequently come in contact with people who have emotional problems.

There are only a few examples of your voluntary Association's roles and activities. They show why the Association asks for your support, focusing attention on May as mental health month. But the Mental Health Association's needs—and its services and programs—are not restricted to one month in the year. They are continuing, day and week and month in and out.

Pepitone Leads Astros Over Mets with Grand Slam, Double

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

Joe Pepitone belted a grand slam homer, his first as a National Leaguer, and a double Wednesday night in leading the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory over New York and he credited Mets first base coach Yogi Berra with his fine performance.

"He (Berra) inspires the hell out of me," said Pepitone.

Jim McGlocklin, who posted a less than mediocre 33-43 record in five seasons with the California Angels, is now 8-3 after pitching a nifty three-hitter for Cincinnati as the Reds beat the Montreal Expos, 7-0, for their fifth straight victory.

"I guess you can just say I've been fortunate," said McGlocklin, referring to the trade which brought him to Cincinnati from California.

In other National League games, Atlanta beat Philadelphia, 5-1; San Diego held off Chicago, 11-8; Los Angeles tripped St. Louis, 4-2; and San Francisco downed Pittsburgh, 4-2.

Pepitone powered a Nolan Ryan fast ball into the right field seats to cap a five-run fourth inning. Fred Gladding, the last of three Houston relievers, preserved Denny Lemaster's fourth win with three innings of shutout pitching.

Tony Perez and Bernie Carbo backed McGlocklin's fine pitching by belting three-run homers.

Atlanta used a four-run second inning and the three-hit pitching of George Stone to beat Philadelphia. Bob Tillman's two-run bases-loaded single highlighted the Braves' big inning which enabled Stone to coast to his sixth win, and shaddled Chris Short with his sixth loss.

Home runs by Ivan Murrell and Ollie Brown paced the Padres past Chicago. Billy Williams, Jim Hickman, Paul Popovich and Johnny Callison homered for Chicago.

Joe Moeller, pitching his first complete game since 1964, helped the Dodgers turn back St. Louis. The Dodgers scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth when Willie Davis trotted aboard on Richie Allen's error, stole second and tallied on a single by Billy Grabarkewitz. Mike Torrez was charged with the defeat.

Willie McCovey, Willie Mays and Ken Henderson each homered to power San Francisco past Pittsburgh. Mays' round tripper snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning and came off Bob Moose who allowed only four hits in eight innings. Gaylord Perry went the distance for the Giants, giving up six hits while upping his record to 9-6.

Veck Testifies Against Baseball's Reserve Clause

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Veck, who has been flaying fat cat for the last 30 years, engaged in his favorite form of amusement Wednesday when he testified against organized baseball's reserve clause.

"The argument that a change in the reserve clause will destroy baseball is absurd," said the former owner-general manager of the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, "because the scuttlers will always beat the fat cats in that game."

"The reserve clause is morally and legally indefensible," said Veck, before Federal Court Judge Irving Ben Cooper officially closed the case on the Curt Flood trial.

"I'm testifying to that now and I've been on record with that statement since 1941."

Judge Cooper, after Wednesday's session, gave both sides additional weeks to supply documents which they may deem necessary to his consideration and said he would reserve decision on judgment. He also reserved decision on an application by clubowners for a dismissal of the suit and a request by Flood's attorney to grant a summary judgment.

Flood brought the $3-million suit against baseball after the St. Louis Cardinals traded him to the Philadelphia Phillies. He was refused permission to negotiate with other clubs and claims he is being denied his rights as a citizen. The reserve

Chicago Bears Sign Two Men Yesterday

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bears Thursday announced the signing of Glen Holloway, their No. 10 draft choice from North Texas State.

Holloway, 6-3 and 245 pounds, was a starter for three years and twice was named All-Conference offensive guard.

The club also signed free agent Jim Gatzlows, a 250-pounder who plays either offensive or defensive tackle. Gatzlows, from Chicago, played two years at Nebraska.

clause binds a player to the team with which he signs unless he is traded or sold.

Veck rejected the argument that a modification of the clause would destroy competition by permitting a few rich clubs to accumulate most of the star players.

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association announced Wednesday the signing of their fifth-round draft choice, Boyd Lynch of Eastern Kentucky.

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — Arthur Ashe of the United States upset Davis Cup colleague Bob Lutz, 7-5, 7-5, Wednesday in the round-robin competition of the John Player tennis tournament.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Go figure ballplayers.

Curt Flood gets so upset about being traded, he makes a federal case of it.

Steve Hovley is told he's going to be dealt and not only doesn't it bother him, he welcomes the idea.

Their two cases are rather different but in a sense they are almost the same. Both men are challenging the establishment. Curt Flood seems to be doing pretty well. With Steve Hovley though, the score up to now is the establishment 1, Steve Hovley 0.

Hovley is a second-year player with the Milwaukee Brewers. He's a 24-year-old left-handed hitter with fair speed and some power. Enough so that there was an immediate response from other clubs when the Brewers said he was on the trading block because of an insubordinate act.

The trouble all came about last week when Hovley showed up nearly a half hour late for a day game with Cleveland at County Stadium in Milwaukee. Dave Bristol, the Brewers' manager, called Hovley into his office and asked him what the reason was. The outfielder said his alarm clock had failed to ring and he had overslept.

"Well you're late, and you'll have to pay like anyone else," Bristol said, referring to the stipulated fine for that transgression he had set down way back in spring training.

"I won't pay it," Steve Hovley said.

That did it. Dave Bristol has managed professional baseball clubs 14 years now ranging all the way from Hornell to Cincinnati and during that time he has handled some pretty fair country ballplayers like Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, Tony Perez, Tommy Helms, Vada Pinson and Leo Cardenas to name a few but nobody he ever fined had refused to pay before.

Just Don't Agree

Bristol assured Hovley he would pay the fine and Hovley was just as insistent he wouldn't so that put things squarely up to Marvin Milkes, Milwaukee's general manager.

Hovley talked with Milkes but would not back down. Accordingly, Milkes notified Hovley the Brewers had no place for him on their ball club. He said every effort would be made to trade him and an announcement to that effect would be made to the press. Milkes even offered to show the announcement to Hovley beforehand but the outfielder wasn't that interested.

"You go right ahead," Hovley said to Milkes. "I know the club has to make an announcement of some kind, but I don't read the newspapers anyway."

PHILLIES SELECT FOUR PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —

The Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday signed four players selected in the free agent draft. The players are first baseman Bruce Butler, from Sacramento, Calif., second baseman Bill McIngle from Menlo Park, Calif., pitcher Chris Bradford from Concord, Calif., and catcher John Dusenberry from Asheville, N.C.

Yanks Down Twins 2-1, Baltimore Beats Angels

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

No one is taking the New York Yankees very seriously these days—except the Baltimore Orioles . . . and maybe the Yankees.

"You bet I consider them a threat," Jim Palmer insisted Wednesday night after he pitched an eight-hitter to give the Orioles a 2-1 victory over the California Angels and keep them 4 1/2 games ahead of the surging Yankees.

The Yanks, who became the forgotten team in New York last year when the Mets became folk heroes, ripped off their seventh win in eight games by downing the Minnesota Twins by an identical 2-1 score to keep on the Orioles' heels.

It turned out Wednesday night that a two-run homer by Horace Clarke (his fourth) was all that Mel Stottlemyre needed to boost his record to 6-4. Stottlemyre stopped the Twins on four hits to beat rookie Bert Blyleven, who was making his second big league start. Merv Rettenmund's two-out triple in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Baltimore its victory over California. The Orioles had lost three straight games to the Angels but they planned the loss on Clyde Wright.

In other American League games, Oakland downed Cleveland, 6-4, Washington routed Kansas City, 8-1, Detroit beat Milwaukee, 7-5, and Boston nipped Chicago, 7-6, in 14 innings.

The Boston-Chicago game was a sloppy affair that, typically, was decided on Bill Melton's error in the 14th inning, his second of the game. Melton misplayed Gerry Moses' grounder with two out in the 14th as George Scott scored from third.

Detroit rallied for four runs in the seventh to beat Milwaukee. Al Kaline socked reliever John Gelnar's first pitch for a two-run homer and Gates Brown's two-run pinch single capped the inning.

Frank Howard hit a two-run single in the second inning and Paul Casanova drove in two runs with a double and a single as Washington beat Kansas City.

Oakland jumped to a 4-0 lead in the second inning and then used five pitchers to hang on for the win over Cleveland. Paul Lindblad got the win in relief.

Don't tolerate beau's insults

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I need an impartial opinion. I have a friend who is in his sixties. He claims he cares for me. He is perfectly charming when we are in the company of women who are older, or less attractive than I. But if there is a younger or prettier woman around, he is sure to say something like, "I think I'll dump her (pointing to me), and take YOU out instead." In the past I've just smiled and ignored it, even though I was deeply hurt inside.

The last time he did this, I lost my temper. He started making over a cocktail waitress and offered to "see her home safely." (She declined.) On the way home, I let him know exactly how I felt about his behavior, and I really lost my temper. He said I was having a "menopause fit."

I haven't heard from him in a week. Should I call and apologize for losing my temper? BUFFALOED

DEAR BUFFALOED: That depends upon how you "lost your temper." If you let loose with a right to his jaw, then apologize. But if you simply said what you meant and meant what you said, no apology is necessary. If you lose him, you lose him. Who needs a man who humiliates you in public, and makes cruel references to your "time of life" in private?

DEAR ABBY: While in a parking lot, I was shocked when a young man rolled down his car window and yelled obscenities at an elderly woman driver, even though she was obviously a very poor driver.

Now, it happens that my husband is considering recommending this same young man to a very important and responsible position with his firm. In view of this young man's rude and immature behavior, I hate to see my husband back him.

Should I mention this to my husband? What is your opinion of such a person? This has really upset me.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: My opinion of this person is the same as yours. He's rude and immature. Yes, mention it to your husband. One glimpse of a man's behavior when he doesn't know he's being observed is worth a 10-page "aptitude" test. If your husband's firm wants a patient, courteous, controlled, mature man—your young friend doesn't qualify.

DEAR ABBY: It seems only logical to me that when a woman becomes a widow at an age when she can no longer live alone, she should go to live with one of her children. (Preferably a daughter.)

Not MY mother-in-law. Oh, no! She prefers to remain "independent." Ha, that's a laugh. Without any income whatsoever. She went through every dime of her insurance money in three years. Now she's sitting pretty in a fancy senior citizens' residence. And who do you think is paying for it? Her children, of course. She has five, who share the expense equally.

The other four can manage nicely, but it puts a real strain on us. In fact, I had to go back to work so his mother could be "independent."

My mother-in-law is only 19 years older than I am, and I wouldn't mind retiring in a fancy senior citizens' residence myself. Do you care to comment?

WEARY IN DETROIT

DEAR WEARY: I think you've said it all.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK OF FISH" IN WISCONSIN: I can give you the advice, but what you need is the courage to tell your husband that your idea of a "vacation" is NOT getting up every morning at 4 a. m., sitting in a boat with your lip zipped for endless hours, and cleaning fish!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Jim Nabors Will Follow His Instincts

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jim Nabors follows his instincts, and they have led him flawlessly to riches and fame in television, night clubs and the recording field.

Only motion pictures have eluded him, or vice versa.

The singer-actor-comedian from Sylacauga, Ala., need only add a hit movie to his accomplishments to become a quadruple star walking the same rarified latitudes as Dean Martin.

Nabors, in fact, has been offered the title role in "A Hero for Henry," a comedy-action Western.

"I'd play an Easterner fascinated with enforcing the law in the old frontier days," Nabors explained. "The character becomes a deputy sheriff and eventually falls in love with a rancher's daughter."

Possesses Sixth Sense But Jim, an affable man possessed of a sixth sense of what will help and hinder his career, is having second, and third thoughts about it.

"Before I get into a movie, I want the quality to be there," he said. "It's not a matter of salary. I'd rather do a picture for nothing and have a quality film than make a lot of money and a poor picture."

"If I did go ahead with this movie, I wouldn't be playing Gomer Pyle or Jim Nabors, I'd be acting in a whole new capacity."

Nine years ago Jim played his first bit part on the old "Andy Griffith Show." He became a mainstay in the situation comedy before branching out with his own "Gomer Pyle" series which was more often No. 1 in the ratings than not.

Intuition Perfectly Timed Odds were Jim would fall with his own variety show. But his intuition for shifting gears was perfectly timed.

"The Jim Nabors Show," a comedy-musical melange ended the current season 12th among all television shows in the ratings. His records are booming and he fills nightclubs wherever he appears.

"I have certain instincts," he said, grinning, "and I follow them. I try to do the right thing without hurting anyone."

Nabors' judgment is difficult to fault. More television, Broadway and nightclub stars have tripped up in movies than have become stars.

Jim Nabors is unlikely to make a wrong turn. He hasn't yet.

Road Deaths Outnumber War Deaths

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Arthur E. Beard, executive director of the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee, says Kentucky's highway deaths for the last eight years far outnumber battlefield deaths of Kentuckians in Viet Nam.

Some 906 Kentucky soldiers died in Viet Nam since 1962, while 7710 Kentuckians died on the state's highways in the same period, he said.

Fifty per cent of the deaths can be directly attributed to drinking and driving, and Beard urged local officials to clamp down on those figures.

"With Armed Forces Day having just passed," he said, "we have been thinking about our war dead. But we are losing more lives in the war on our highways than ever before."

Beard expressed great concern over the rising highway death toll and advised heavy drinkers to stay off the highways for their own safety as well as for the safety of other motorists, since local officials will be exerting extra effort in taking them off the highway.

The announcement came as part of the two-month campaign launched last week by Governor Nunn and the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee.

Statistics show that 70 per cent of the fatal and serious wounds during World War II were received in the chest or abdomen.

The French ship "Gloire" was the first armorclad ship of war (1859).

HOOVER AIDE RETIRING WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cartha D. De Loach, third-ranked assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, will retire from the Federal Bureau of Investigation July 20 on his 50th birthday.

An FBI spokesman said De Loach had made application for retirement "for financial reasons." De Loach, a native of Clanton, Ga., joined the FBI 28 years ago.

Hoover, 76, and the No. 2 ranking FBI officer, Clyde A. Tolson, 70, have given no indication of plans to retire.

Boots, like them or not, stay on for the new fashion season ahead. In fall and winter collections, American designers continue their love affair with the knee-high "ones-in vinyl, patent, calf. For after five, the booted leg wears satin or velvet leg coverings.

DEPUTY DAN DEBUTS LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The distribution of 90,000 "Deputy Dan" coloring books to Los Angeles school children has finally been approved by the sheriff's department.

The issuance of the booklets, designed to promote friendly relations between youngsters and deputy sheriffs, was halted last week after a hawk-eyed deputy complained that the California bear on Deputy Dan's helmet looked more like a pig.

However, Capt. Garland Austin, head of the community relations office, said, "In some people's minds it looks like it might appear to be a pig rather than a bear. But to me, it looks like a bear."

Gail Borden, an American inventor, developed the first commercial method of condensing milk.

Disney World Creates Own Jungle Climate!

Walt Disney World landscape experts test a mini-furnace for use in protecting delicate jungle plants from Florida's occasional frost.

By Central Press

ORLANDO, Fla.—Walt Disney World's tropical tree experts are using an Arctic test laboratory to develop an invisible "blanket" big enough to warm a whole jungle.

The problem is how to protect $200,000 worth of equatorial plants which will line the banks of the Jungle River Cruise in Adventureland now under construction as a part of the "Magic Kingdom" near Orlando, Florida.

Strangely enough, the Disney landscape men had to go all the way to Cleveland to test methods for insulating the sensitive plants against even infrequent Florida frostings.

Even though the freezing conditions may only last for a few pre-dawn hours during the winter, that would be enough to turn a green jungle brown.

"Our problem is different from the citrus growers in California or Florida," says Walt Disney World landscape chief Bill Evans. "We cannot have any evidence of the heating system visible to guests cruising down the 2,000-foot river through the jungle."

"After all," he adds, "it's hard to find a smudge pot in the Congo or a wind machine in Borneo."

ONE of the added difficulties is that in Florida the cold is frequently accompanied by a 20-mile-an-hour north wind.

To solve their problem, the Disney men packed up their plants—samples of varieties from all around the equatorial world. They took them to Cleveland—the nearest available laboratory where military vehicles and equipment are tested for performance at sub-zero Alaskan temperatures.

"We needed to test extreme conditions and couldn't afford to wait for several winters in

Pesticide Endangers Bald Eagle

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A widely used pesticide is contributing to the decline in the population of the bald eagle, the national bird which already is considered an endangered species in 48 states.

Interior Department scientists say they have detected poisoning from dieldrin in growing numbers of bald eagles found dead in the United States, with the pesticide "the only apparent cause of death" in most of the birds that have been the national symbol since 1782.

They said perhaps more important dieldrin and other environmental pollutants may have an even more insidious effect on the eagle population by reducing the bird's reproduction capability.

An Audubon Society survey conducted in 1968 found there were some 1,500 bald eagles in the 48 contiguous states, where they are considered in danger of becoming extinct. Most of those birds were found along the East Coast, in Florida and the Northern Midwest. In addition, the survey estimated there were about 3,500 of a slightly different northern variety in Alaska and Canada.

About 7,000 in Alaska. The Interior Department, however, estimates there are about 7,000 bald eagles in Alaska.

Charles H. Meacham, commissioner of the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service, said dieldrin is a persistent pesticide like DDT but considerably more toxic.

Dr. Lucille Stickle, pesticide research coordinator at the department's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel, Md., said dieldrin is widely used in all parts of the nation by farmers and in woolen mills to treat fabrics against moths.

Residues from the pesticide apparently drain into streams and lakes, where some of it accumulates in the bodies of fish, which make up the bulk of the eagles' diet, she said.

Reasons for Decline She explained that a smaller degree of propagation and hatching success is one of the two major reasons for the decline of the bald eagle.

Pesticide residues in the birds may be making eggs infertile, killing unborn chicks in the eggs and resulting in thinner egg shells that break easier.

The other major reason for the decline is the killing of adult birds by hunters, even though bald eagles are protected by law and there is $500 fine for killing them.

An official for the Audubon Society explained, however, that bald eagles don't grow white feathers on their heads and wings until about age 5, and many hunters mistake younger ones for hawks.

Trucks For Parks Are Purchased

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
NEW YORK (UPI)—The Third Street Music School Settlement, first of its kind in America, is 75 years old this year but young in ideas.

Started on a shoestring by a daughter of a Lutheran clergyman to bring musical education to the children of poor immigrants, the school serves 900 largely disadvantaged persons from the ages of four into the retirement years.

A third of the students—some from welfare families—are on full scholarship and none of the rest pays more than 50 per cent of the cost of instruction, even though some students are the children of doctors and lawyers.

The school's director, Harris Danziger, believes no school which caters to one economic class can be a strong school.

"A great proportion of our students are high school kids," said Danziger, who also is president of the National Guild of Music Schools. "In view of that, I think we are performing an important sociological function in these troubled times."

Music grabs these kids. We have no trouble, no drug problem, no unrest."

Almost all classes are held after regular school hours, but there is no attendance problem. The parents, according to Danziger, are completely cooperative, sometimes too much so. When the school was founded the parents were Russian, Polish, Italian and German immigrants of the Lower East Side and Greenwich Village.

"Now about a quarter of our students are black and Puerto Rican families and they come from more distant parts of the city," Danziger said. "These are people with completely different musical traditions than our students of European background years ago. We try to build on that—on rock, calypso, folk. Kids are far more involved in rock than in Mozart, so we have a large rock workshop."

There are some 50 non-profit settlement music schools across the nation and in Canada which are affiliated with the National Guild of Musical Schools and meet its rigorous standards. Some are patterned on Third Street which counts such artists as Anthony di Bonaventura, Jeannette Scovotti, Ray Lev, and Samuel Duskin among its 75,000 alumni.

David Janssen Makes Big Change—And How!

By ARMY ARCHERD
Central Press Association
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—It's a different David Janssen—and how! Take a suave, good-looking young man and throw him in a sweltering dungeon, crawling with vermin and loaded with will that hogs wouldn't touch. Leave him there for 30 days with little food and hardly any water. Let him alone in the perpetually baking stinkhole and after the 30 days see what you've got.

You have David Janssen in his title role of "Macho Callahan." He emerges from the rat hole as a grisly, broken-down figure of a man, begging on hands and knees for his freedom. His jailers: Confederate army wounded and misfits who laugh gleefully at this man who tried to escape from their Andersonville-style Civil War prison on the frontier West and whom they finally have broken.

This is David Janssen?

THE JAILERS threatened him with rifle barrels and bayonets but David, whose ordeal has robbed him of his voice, barely mutters, "Please!"

They laugh derisively at him and allow him to leave for the camp compound after threatening to shoot him the next time he tries to escape. A crawling, stumbling Janssen then weaves, almost aimlessly, through the destitute and dimly lit tent city, its grottoes denizens coming to life for the start of the day.

Janssen reaches a muddy creek that meanders through the camp and falls into the water drinking thirstily from it as he sprawls full-length in the ugly brook. Yup, it's a different role for Hollywood's best-dressed man!

ever done since one has to see the final projection of the film to determine whether it's really good," he said.

One thing is certain, he's certainly trying to vary his film roles recently in "Generation," and previously in "Where It's At." Both were generation-gap films in very contemporary U.S.A. settings—New York and Las Vegas.

"THE PUBLIC has never seen David like this before," said producer Martin Scutney. "It's a complete change from David's outgoing personality and from any role he's had on television or movies. But, I think all his fans will like the way he follows through with this role."

And director Bernie Kowalski said, "Janssen did some great acting for us. He added more depth and scope to the story that already is loaded with it. David Janssen is going to surprise a lot of people with this performance."

It won't surprise his faithful fans who have been waiting for him to really "burst forth" as a superstar on the big screen, after years of much rooting for him on television!

Daybook of America 1770-1870-1970

By CLARK KINNAIRD

No. 52 for Daybook scrapbooks. Distinctly American banners were in use seven years or more before the Continental Congress approved a stars and stripes design for ships commissioned in the Continental Navy. Ships sailing under authority of individual Provinces or Colonies—Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, et al.—were to continue use in the increase of identifications flown in the 17th or 18th century militancy against pirates, Spanish, French, Indians, rebels. Rhode Island's flag had an anchor, New York's a beaver.

Banners with disjointed rattlers were inspired by cartoon [1] in Ben Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette, 1754, emphasizing necessity of unity for effective striking against French & Indian marauders. Acceptance of this native snake as American symbol was most general in South. Meanwhile, green trees appeared in New England regional flags such as this [2] emblematic of the sectional intercolonial defense against French.

There was proliferation of flags with an emblem, identifiable non-precisely as pine, fir, or spruce or other standing timbers that made New England's shores easily distinguishable, and fostered the shipbuilding and venturesome commerce British sought to curb as competition to their own. In 1770, a new variant was the Liberty Tree flag, embroidered with "An Appeal to Heaven" or "An Appeal to God."

South Carolina's a palmetto, for distinguishing its ships or combat troops. There were multiple designs embodying a rattlesnake or an evergreen tree in 1770.

More confusion about original banners in patriot struggles 1770-1781 is ended for a reader of The Flag Book of the United States, by Whitney Smith (pub. by Morrow).

GROSS DISCRIMINATION

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian government gives a male employee a holiday with pay when his child is born, but a woman must give birth on her own time.

This fact came to light this week in Treasury Board President C. M. Drury's replies to written questions from a member of parliament. Drury revealed that although a male in the civil service gets a day off with pay when his child is being born, a woman gets no such government benefit. Does the government intend to extend the courtesy to women, Drury was asked. "No," he replied.

NOW IS THE TIME TO REGISTER FOR NOVEMBER

Now is the time for all unregistered but otherwise qualified Kentuckians to register to vote in the Nov. 3 general election.

Registration books were to be reopened June 1 after being closed March 29 through May 31 due to the May 28 primary elections. They will be closed again Sept. 6 until after the November election.

Kentuckians in November will elect seven members of the U. S. House of Representatives and a judge of the Court of Appeals from the Third District.

They also will vote on a proposed bond issue of $48.3 million to finance construction projects for mental health, corrections, child welfare and schools for the deaf and the blind.
